Government of Canada & Financial Institutions

Speak to your Lender

Canada's largest financial institutions (BMO, CIBC, National Bank of Canada, RBC, Scotiabank, and TD Bank), as well as some credit unions like Vancity, are committed to working with business banking customers on a case-by-case basis to provide flexible financing solutions such as payment deferrals, reduced interest rates on credit cards and temporary limit increases.

Canada Emergency Business Account (CEBA):

The new CEBA will provide interest-free loans of up to $40,000 to eligible small businesses and not-for-profits, to help cover their operating costs during a period where their revenues have been temporarily reduced. To qualify, these organizations will need to demonstrate they paid between $20,000 to $1.5 million in total payroll in 2019. Repaying the loan on or before December 31, 2022 will result in loan forgiveness of 25% (up to $10,000). Interested businesses should work with their current financial institutions. Rural small businesses can contact Community Futures, which is receiving federal funding to support businesses that don't qualify for the CEBA.

Business Credit Availability Program (BCAP):

The Federal government has established the BCAP to help Canadian businesses obtain financing during the current period of significant uncertainty. The BCAP will support access to financing for businesses in all sectors and regions through financial institutions. These programs will roll out in mid-April, and interested businesses should work with their current financial institutions.

- Co-Lending Program for Small and Medium-Sized Enterprises:

The Business Development Bank of Canada (BDC) is working with financial institutions to co-lend term loans of up to $6.25 million to small and medium enterprises, for their operational cash flow requirements. Eligibility has been extended to all legal businesses, including cannabis businesses and those in the hospitality sector operating bars and lounges.
